Best Practices for Ad Creatives

- ✓ Beautiful imagery. Bold, colorful photography and dramatic images are most provocative.
- ✓ Readability. Type should be at least 32px at retina resolution (equivalent to a 16px on screen) for readability, for black print against white background. Fine print should be at least 24px (equivalent to 12px). For light print against a dark background, consider larger type or boldface.
- ✓ Clear call to action. When offering touch targets, creative should have a clear tappable area and messaging.

Best Practices for Touch Targets

When the ad is tapped, Flipboard opens an in-app browser to display the specified link.

- ✓ For a given creative, only one click-through URL may be specified for a given device (e.g. all Android Tablet units must point at the same URL).
- ✓ Use mobile-optimized landing pages whenever possible (especially for phone UI).
- ✓ Custom landing pages designed for the ad campaign can offer richer user interactions, such as videos.
- ✓ You may provide click-tracking URLs for ads that click through to a client website, video, or app download, but we do not accept impression trackers. For ads clicking through to a brand magazine, we do not support any 3rd party tracking.

- ✓ Required Ad Units. For an ad creative to be served on a given device, all file units marked required for that device must be provided.
- ✓ App Downloads. If your click-through URL is for an app store, please ensure that the creatives you submit are flexible enough to appear on any device you are targeting (e.g. show both an Apple App Store and Google Play icon) and then specify the correct URL for the given device.
